This is exactly what I was looking for. It's cute and fun journal. Its fun to write down your days events in a short way.

This book/concept has changed my life. Highly recommend it. One liners make it easy for even the busiest of bees to use. At the end of the year, you end up having good moments/things that you're grateful/good thoughts to reflect on. Buying a used copy of the book might help an organization in need, so check it out. The proceeds to one of my purchases of this book went to aids education in NY-- couldn't have been happier! Also bought a new one to give as a present.

This was a birthday gift for my sister. My wife had seen that she was reading the book and decided this would be a perfect gift for her. So far she has recorded something for everyday that she has had it and she is loving it. She made sure to note on the day she received it that she got it as a gift from her big brother and his wife, lol.

It's a great idea but the book is too small to comfortably and legibly write in, especially as a left-hander! I eventually switched to a journal from TJ Maxx and just write the dates at the top of each page.

The lines are small but it works. If I have more to write that day, I write on every line, if I just want to jot down few things I use 2 lines at once. The journal is meant to be one-sentence journal so the small lines don't bother me too much, and actually gets the burden off my shoulders. Hope I can finish this journal!

I love the idea behind the Happiness Project, but I agree with some of the reviews that it's a bit small and cramped. My handwriting is small, so this isn't as big of an issue for me, but you might want to consider other one-sentence journals if you tend to have a larger handwriting.

Really like the concept of writing one sentence a day. I bought 5 of these for gifts. Four were perfect and one had the cover on upside down and backwards... Since they were gifts and there was a time constraint, I just wrote a funny note in the upside down journal and gave it anyway, but as I plan to give more for gifts, I hope the mistake is not repeated.

Have given this journal as a gift to two different friends and they have both told me on numerous occasions how much they like and enjoy it!!
