Beautiful Skin Of Color: A Comprehensive Guide To Asian, Olive, And Dark Skin

Synopsis

It's a fact of DNA: If you can trace your roots back to Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, India, Latin America, the Mediterranean, the Middle East, the South Pacific, or any group of Native Americans, your genes react similarly to genes in the darkest skin. And chances are, you may have received confusing advice -- or no advice at all -- about how to care for your skin. Although nearly half the population of the United States shares the hallmarks of skin of color, many dermatologists and beauty consultants routinely prescribe remedies created for Caucasian skin without understanding how sensitive and easily damaged skin of color is. It's no wonder, then, that many women and men of color continually battle skin problems, and it takes a terrible toll on their self-esteem. Finally, Beautiful Skin of Color unlocks the particular secrets of your skin and provides the answers you've been searching for. Dr. Fran Cook-Bolden and Dr. Jeanine Downie, internationally recognized dermatologists and women of color, and Barbara Nevins Taylor, an award-winning reporter on skin and hair issues, offer clear, specific advice to help you achieve and maintain a healthy, gorgeous complexion. In a quick-reference, A-to-Z format, using examples drawn from personal and professional experience, Dr. Cook-Bolden and Dr. Downie explain why problems occur, and then prescribe reliable remedies and groundbreaking new procedures specifically created for skin of color. Throughout this comprehensive guide, the doctors show you how to work with your skin and hair -- and your dermatologist -- to create your own unique skin-management program. A long-overdue and much-needed resource, Beautiful Skin of Color is certain to help you look and feel your best.

This is an excellent resource for learning about skin of color. It provides detailed information for almost any skin condition i.e. causes of skin disorders, remedies, length of expected results, product names for over-the-counter and prescription medicine, average cost of cosmetic procedures and side effects. As an African-American, I was amazed to learn facts about the specifics of my skin, like, laser skin resurfacing treatment is not recommended for keloid-prone skin and microdermabrasion is a gentler and safer treatment because layers of the skin are not rubbed off and no anesthetic is needed. Because the skin is gently "blasted" with particles during microdermabrasion, it can help fade dark marks with the use of hydroquinone products because this agent can seep deeper into the skin after dead skin has been removed. Included in this book is basic information that we all should know, especially about drinking plenty of water to hydrate the skin and using a humidifier to add moisture to the air. However, after reading this book, I was better informed about various skin conditions and how to treat my skin. The book contains information regarding acne, dry skin, botox, chemical peels, wrinkle fillers, cysts, dark circles, facial hair, sun protection (which is highly suggested throughout the book), stretch marks, hair loss, moles, laser treatments and tons of other skin conditions. I would definitely recommend this book to anyone searching for facts regarding delicate skin of color.

Book was in great condition: clean, dust cover in good repair, not faded or damaged in any way. Delivery was timely, way sooner than expected. And as for the book itself: Invaluable material for anyone interested in getting more knowledgeable about skin of color and how it should be treated. A great starter book for getting oriented to the difference in the range of skin types represented by the Fitzpatrick Scale. For the consumer, I think this book will give them more information on how to make better choices for their skin health. For the professional, I think it will help them get their head wrapped around this topic in some majorly meaningful ways. Just enough technical information for guidance, just enough layman's terms to make it relatable to every day people.

Had been to dermatologists in this area but was disappointed w/ the results. They had more to say about what couldn't be done and what wouldn't help vs what could be done and what could help my condition (atopic dermatitis). Being a person of color makes skin care tricky. Not all doctors keep up with the latest information. I was happy to find this book written by a dermatologist who could identify. I've purchased some of the over-the-counter products as a result & plan to ask my doctor abt one or more of the prescription meds mentioned. Thanks for the excellent information.

I ordered the book on Feb 5th and just received it today. The book looks brand new, no pen marks, or folds. This book is definitely worth more than the amount I paid for it ($3.99 no shipping). I'm very grateful that I was able to get this book at this price and in such a excellent condition. I hope to order more books from this seller.

Arrived fast. Didn't realize that it was gonna be used from a library. But I'm fine with that. I'll post a update after done reading. :)

A waste of money.

I looked into this book because I'm olive skinned and my husband is dark skinned. It was completely useless. Each chapter starts off with the bare basics of this is why, a letter from x, y and z complaining about the chapter title and a dermatologist saying "I know what they mean. I have the same problem!". It then gives you some insanely simple answers. Acne? Wash your face and use over the counter face washes and creams. Didn't help? Really? Go to a doctor. I had high hopes but nothing helpful. Just use Google. It's actually more helpful.

After the introduction the next section is "Why it Happens." Then it goes into "Remedies" and explains the different procedures of what has or has not worked. After remedies they provide "A Doctor's Guide" where applicable; which explains the different kinds of medical and dermatological procedures available today along with new ground being broken for exploration of how to care for and treat skin of color. Along with the expert information and medical advice contained here an estimation of cost for the different procedures is also provided so you can have an idea of what it will take to treat the skin condition or problem. For example here is the estimated cost of Skin Rejuvenation by Laser $300.00-$1500.00, light, depending on the light used, is either $400.00, $1,000-1,500 and radio frequency $1,000-2,500.00. Want to know more about these procedures and what they do? You'll have to read the book to find out. Here are Some of the conditions addressed in the book. Botox for ethnic skin,

Hair Care and Hair loss for both men and women, Tattoos and Chemical Peels. There is also a chapter on "Dangerous Products." These are products that can be very damaging to ethnic and multiethnic skin and not all products on the market for skin of color are safe to use.
