John Wooden was a high school and college coach for forty years. During that time, his teams won more than 80 percent of their games. From 1948 to 1975, his UCLA Bruins teams claimed 10 NCAA national championships, including seven in a row, and at one time won 88 consecutive games. Wooden is in the Basketball Hall of Fame, both as a player and a coach. He originated the Pyramid of Success and was the coauthor with Jay Carty of the bestseller Coach Wooden One-on-One. Coach and his wife, Nellie, were married 53 years when she passed away in 1985. Coach lived to be 99 years of age, passing away on June 4, 2010. JAY CARTY has played for the Los Angeles Lakers, coached basketball at his alma mater, Oregon State, and been a part of John Wooden's UCLA coaching staff. After hanging up his basketball shoes, Carty entered ministry. He has been a traveling preacher and the author of many books, including Playing with Fire, and the coauthor of Coach Wooden One-on-One and Darrell Waltrip One-on-One. Jay and his wife, Mary, live in California.

Coach Wooden is the ultimate principle architect. His blueprint for life was developed and refined over a life time. He laid a solid foundation of principles that will support all the other principles. The foundation principles are values that if implemented will set the example and attract others to follow your leadership. The second level are principles of self discipline that when demonstrated consistently show others you are a person who is in control of themselves. The third level are principles of both ability and camaraderie that draw individuals into a close knit team. The fourth level are the keys to the cap stone of competitive greatness. These two building blocks are crucial to individual success and when cultivated are displayed outwardly as sure sign of success. Like any great architect Coach included the mortar that is a necessity to hold the principles together. These mortar principles hold the block principles together because they incorporate deep inner seated values that intertwine and cause the block principles to withstand the test of time.

Reading this now. Worth every minute invested. The definition of success is as clear and within my control as any definition I've ever read. The building blocks and mortar are the components of the excellence we seek from ourselves. Study of these components can only lead to better character and performance within the team.

Absolutely love this book. It's spiritually based and has helped me with relationships, job, and so many other areas in my life. A good Bible study tool since it offers scriptures to read at the end of each section. More than I expected to get out of this book. I highly recommend it.

The book is half written by Wooden and half written by his colleague, with biblical explanations of Wooden's thinking.

John Wooden was one of the most successful coaches and awesome teachers at UCLA. His book teaches success based on biblical principles! I highly recommend it!

The author coached under Wooden and therefore knew the man and the foundation of his pyramid. Christian faith aside, this book would benefit anyone seeking to live a better, more successful life. The fundamental principles are timeless, unlike the shifting values of our popular culture. Stop wavering in uncertainty and aimlessness and discover and apply the fundamentals presented by the master, coach Wooden!

My son is reading it daily and learning to apply Coach Wooden's principals. Solid advice to help build his character.
