ISO 9241-210:2010, Ergonomics Of Human-system Interaction - Part 210: Human-centred Design For Interactive Systems

Synopsis

ISO 9241-210:2010 provides requirements and recommendations for human-centred design principles and activities throughout the life cycle of computer-based interactive systems. It is intended to be used by those managing design processes, and is concerned with ways in which both hardware and software components of interactive systems can enhance human-œsystem interaction.
