Fantastic artwork is the reason I bought this way back when. Then I bought the second part as well also for its horrific and amazing artwork. I am not a huge fan of Games Workshop, they really are as a company the biggest jerks in the gaming industry (these arrogant greedy morons tried to patent and trademark the word(s) Space Marine!), but these books are really great and I am glad I bought them. I still have mine and I use them for other games (Stormbringer RPG and Knights and Magic especially) but I never buy any GW stuff anymore, I do have a lot of the old stuff and they made fantastic miniatures (still do but way overpriced), but as games go Warhammer is simplistic, over-commercialised and over-priced and there are much better rules out there and far cheaper lines of miniatures. One of the things that pushed me to other systems and companies was how they were always making a newer accepted version of stuff that already existed and new editions that made what you had no longer canon and acceptable for play.
